As a group we worked extremely well together and complemented each others strengths and weaknesses in a productive manner. We kept in constant touch answering questions, proposing new methods, and sharing useful information on teams. My group mates were patient, friendly, and helpful with any confusions, and I tried to be as well. We went through a few iterations, first attempting to use C++, then python with openCV to attempt to show the images, finishing on Tkinter for a more polished GUI that better matched the requirements.
